

Week of 19 Dec 11: Has your opinion of environmental advocacy groups changed?

Results Overview

Date: 12/24/2011 6:17 AM PST

Responses: Completes

Filter: No filter applied

1. What has happened to your opinion of environmental advocacy groups over the last ten - fifteen years?
#	Response
1	Stayed the same. I have always believed them to be "dust kickers". One would think that reviewing a long standing TV stations records of temperatures over the past 50 years...would supply some meaningful, unbiased data on which the Scientific Method could be applied???
2	When the Greenpeace president finally admitted that they had been wrong on Nuclear Power
3	Global warming
4	They have resorted to baseless rhetoric and protest instead of facts to try to make their points
5	98% of scientists now support their general case. Picking isolated anecdotes to support any view is not science.
6	Declined due primarily to continual fear mongering like they are trying to sell something.
7	Regardless of the progress made in society or by industry, environmental NGO's continue to put out half truths and distortions. Their efforts lack balance, truth and it seems that they most prefer reduction in freedom.
8	Glaciers and icebergs melting, sea levels rising, extreme weather

Products & Services | About Us | Support/Help

© 2011 Copyright MarketTools Inc. All Rights Reserved. | Privacy Policy | Terms Of Use